California Judicial Center Library Sponsors New Exhibit

Charles Hobson's Why I Love Books

San Francisco—Why I Love Books: Artist's Books by Charles Hobson is the California Judicial Center Library's first exhibit in the new year.

The exhibit is currently on display in the lobby of the Earl Warren Building, 350 McAllister St., and will run through Tuesday, March 21.

The exhibit contains 11 of Mr. Hobson's works, including Shipwreck Stories, historical accounts about six shipwrecks along the Northern California coast, and Leonardo Knows Baseball, excerpts from Leonardo Da Vinci's notebooks on drawing the human figure in motion juxtaposed with baseball figures in action. Other titles included in the exhibit are The Mappist (2005), Fresnel's Tower (1997), and Magritte's Buckets (1995).

Mr. Hobson's artist's books are created by hand, in limited editions, and are also found in special collections at the University of California at Los Angeles and Stanford, Harvard and Yale Universities, as well as the Bancroft Library at the University of California at Berkeley. Detailed information about his work may be seen at www.charleshobson.com.

Also on display in the Earl Warren Building, first floor, is In Writing With Reasons Stated: California Official Reports and the Reporter of Decisions, 1850-2005. Other recent exhibits by the California Judicial Center Library include California Women in the Law; Leading For Justice: California's Chief Justices in the 19th, 20th and 21st Centuries; and Striving for Justice: the California Court of Appeal, 1905-2005. The library serves the California Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal, First Appellate District, in San Francisco.
